Press Release

$15 Million From Investors Backs Allconnect's Continued Growth, Industry Leadership

ATLANTA, April 25, 2007 – Allconnect, the leading provider of essential home services information and connections, announced that it closed a $15 million round of funding. The infusion of growth capital will accelerate development of the company's multi-channel consumer services. Scheduled to be released later this year, Allconnect's new transactional website will complement its existing contact center capabilities by allowing consumers to better research and select essential services like cable, satellite and broadband across a wide range of suppliers and plans.

"It's all about choice and convenience for the customer," said Mark Miller, Allconnect's chairman and chief executive officer. "Some prefer the voice channel and speaking directly with an expert who can help with decisions regarding prices and product choices. Others prefer doing their research and selections on-line. Either way, we're here for them. Our mission is to help make a relocation event and a change of service plans as easy and convenient as possible."

"This growth capital, provided by our longtime partners Covestco and Nth Power, represents a significant investment in our future and service expansion strategy," said Miller. "We've built a unique service and helped over 15 million consumers compare and connect their essential household services. Our new online capabilities will make this process even simpler by expanding our ability to provide consumers with a one stop shopping experience and setting a new standard for choice and convenience."
