Press Release

Allconnect Names New CFO

ATLANTA, June 14, 2006 – Mark Miller, Chairman and CEO of Allconnect, Inc., today announced that Gene Ellis has been named Chief Financial Officer (CFO) for the company.

“Gene has demonstrated the ability to build and lead a first class finance operation in support of an organization’s strategic direction. He possesses a wealth of experience in important areas like corporate governance, compliance and controllership and has led two fast growing companies through successful IPOs as CFO. His proven thought leadership skills, energy and ability to foster the important relationships with business analysts, bankers and customers will be vital to our future,” said Miller in making the announcement. “We couldn’t be more pleased to have Gene on the Allconnect team.”

Prior to joining Allconnect, Ellis served as CFO of three publicly traded companies and was instrumental in leading two of them through very successful public offerings. Most recently, he was CFO of Atlanta-based PRG-Schultz International, Inc., a business services firm with annual revenues of $350 million and 2,800 employees. Earlier in his career, Ellis served as CFO of KnowledgeWare, Inc., an international software company, and Information America, Inc., an online database company. Prior to his corporate experience Ellis worked in the public accounting arena.
